Mining companies are notorious for exiting with the profits and leaving toxic waste behind for the taxpayer to sort out. There's nothing "green" about mining. Deisel machinery and trucks operating 24/7. That means burning fossil fuel in case it needs to be spelled out. For what? Paint?

The West Coast might need jobs (although there are many unfilled positions currently advertised) but I would like to point out that humans have lived on this planet for thousands of years without "jobs" and it is largely "jobs" (ie money) that are threatening the very survivability of life on earth. If we care about the very survival of our children and grandchildren we have to stop this madness.

The proposed mine might be on private land but the effects do not stay on private land. The noise 24/7 will have a negative impact on humans and birds living in the vicinity. The trucks will make it more dangerous and unpleasant on the roads through this beautiful area. Tourists will stay away. Locals peace will be shattered.

The site appears to be very close to sea level will the hole fill up with seawater in 5 years time? Will toxic waste be carried out to

I/we seek the following decision from the Local Authority:(give precise details)
